About the speakers

Bonnie Glaser is a senior adviser for Asia in the Freeman Chair in China Studies, where she works on issues related to Chinese foreign and security policy. She is concomitantly a senior associate with CSIS Pacific Forum and a consultant for the U.S. government on East Asia. Ms. Glaser has written extensively on various aspects of Chinese foreign policy, including Sino-U.S. relations, U.S.-China military ties, cross-Straits relations, China's relations with Japan and Korea, and Chinese foreign policy decision making and regional strategy.

Eric Heginbotham is a senior political scientist at the RAND Corporation specializing in East Asian security issues. He has led projects examining Chinese nuclear strategy, Chinese and U.S. military capabilities, and regional dynamics in North-east and Southeast Asia. Heginbotham has co-authored or edited several books, including Chinese and Indian Strategic Behavior: Growing Power and Alarm, and has published articles on Japanese and Chinese foreign policy and strategic issues in Foreign Affairs, International Security, Current History, and The National Interest.

Christopher Hughes is professor of international politics and Japanese studies, chair of the Department of Politics and International Studies and chair of the Faculty of Social Sciences at the University of Warwick, UK. He holds adjunct/associate positions at Hiroshima, Waseda and Harvard universities. His most recent book publications include Japan's Remilitarisation, Japan's Reemergence as a 'Normal' Military Power, and Japan's Foreign and Security Policy Under the 'Abe Doctrine' (forthcoming).

Yoshihide Soeya is professor of political science and international relations at the Faculty of Law of Keio University. He served as the director of the Institute of East Asian Studies of the same university for six years until September 2013, and currently is the director of its Center for Contemporary Korean Studies. Most recently, Dr. Soeya was a Japan scholar of the Woodrow Wilson Center, in Washington D.C. from September 2013 to January 2014, and a Korea Foundation Fellow affiliated with the ASAN Institute in Seoul in March-May 2014.

About the chair

Richard Samuels is Ford International Professor of Political Science and director of the Center for International Studies. He has been Vice-Chair of the Committee on Japan of the National Research Council, and chair of the Japan-US Friendship Commission. He was awarded an imperial decoration, the Order of the Rising Sun, Gold and Silver Star by the Emperor of Japan and the Japanese Prime Minister. He is one of only three scholars (Japanese or foreign) to have produced more than one scholarly monograph recognized by the Nippon Foundation as one of the top "one hundred books for understanding contemporary Japan".
